THE WORLD'S ACCOUNTING FIRMS

A LIKE® Markets Guide · LIKE® Magazine

The world's money is counted, audited and advised on by a profession organised in layers: four global networks of a scale all their own; a second tier of networks and associations that follow the middle market across every border; the great national firms of the United States, several of them now reshaped by private equity and by the two largest firm transactions of the decade; and, newest of all, networks built from China to follow Chinese enterprise around the world. This guide maps all four layers — who leads each organisation in October 2026, how its member firms fit together, what it sells, where it stands, and what it publishes about its size — with every figure dated and every gap named.

Global leader: Steve Heathcote, CEO of PrimeGlobal; Edwin Vogel, Chair of PrimeGlobal

Global leadership: CEO: Steve Heathcote. Chair: Edwin Vogel (from Oct 2024). No CFO title is published — stated plainly.

Ownership & member-firm structure: An association of independent accounting and advisory firms — not a network under the IESBA Code and not a single firm. Global leader: Jerome (Jerry) Grisko Jr., President and CEO of CBIZ, Inc.

Global leadership: President and CEO: Jerry Grisko. CBIZ is a New York Stock Exchange-listed company (NYSE: CBZ), so its full executive officer team and board are published in its SEC filings and on cbiz.com — the only entry in this guide whose leadership is a matter of securities filings.
